The Sunday School Times

THANKSGIVING NUMBER

ISSUE OF NOVEMBER 11, 1916.

Is that little Armenian boy in the refugee camp in Egypt going to find bread in the deep basket because you put some there for him? Which one of the youngsters near him would you want to turn away unfed? And the little Syrian children are very hungry now,—so hungry that when you read Dr. Ellis' article in this issue you'll want to spare something for them, too.

Uniform Graded Quarterlies

for over a quarter of a century these quarterlies have been conceded to be unexcelled, and have won the first place among Sunday School periodicals.

Our corps of editors, comprising Rev. F. N. PELOUBET, D.D., Rev. A. H. MCKINNEY, PH.D., MRS. LILLIAN KENNEDY WYMAN, and MRS. ANNA L. BURNS, stands at the head of Sunday School writers, and their names guarantee their worth.

Teachers' Quarterlies

The greatest assistants to teachers who are anxious to present the lessons in the most helpful and concise form.

Superintendents are invited to send for sample Quarterlies and Home Department requisites.

Books for Young People

The books we publish are of exceptional worth and merit. Our object is to provide good literature for young people of a character both to instruct and entertain. Although these stories are primarily for young people, they are intensely interesting to older readers.

We shall be pleased to send our complete Illustrated Book Catalogue on request.

No Unclean Hands Touch This Chocolate

No hands ever come in contact with Zatek Milk Chocolate Eatmors because they are made and packed by machinery. You yourself must take off the cap to release its treasure. Then out tumble 28 or more stars of pure chocolate goodness—clean and fresh.

Parents who wisely hesitate to give children candy scooped from a pan by unclean hands find the logical solution of the children's candy problem. Buy Eatmors for the kiddies and for yourself. High-grade pure chocolate, refined sugar and rich milk with cream make a wholesome combination, as delightful as it is satisfying.

Milk Chocolate
EATMORS
